OHIO FARM GIRL HOLDS BOMB SYNDICATE ROLE

CONFESSION BARES WHOLESALE RING OF BOMBERS IN CHICAGO

Woman Who Deserted Husband Plays Part In Outrages

Chicago, Nov. 27.—The 23-year-old daughter of an Ohio farmer, who deserted her husband and three children in Battle Creek, Mich., and came to Chicago with "another man," was the central figure today in Chicago's greatest bomb conspiracy.

The young woman, believed to be the first woman bomber in the United States, is Mrs. Laura Schrock Rice. Her home was with her parents on a farm near Richmond, Ohio, near Columbus.

She met and married H. C. Rice and they went to Battle Creek to live.

According to her confession she fled from domestic life, fled to her father's home and then came to Chicago with Fred Wamquist, who was arrested with her early Thanksgiving Day when police caught her in the act of placing a high explosive bomb in the entrance of a hardware store.

On a tip from a former member of the "bombing syndicate" nearly 100 police officers waited in ambush near the hardware store. They understood it was to be bombed at midnight, because it violated rules of remaining open on Sundays.

At 1 a. m. the vigil was rewarded. Wamquist and the girl appeared, the girl dropped the package and then the two ran to a waiting auto in which Joseph Avanzo was waiting. Under a volley of fire from police guns, the three were captured and after several hours of grilling, admitted a bomb conspiracy of such proportions that State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe today went into criminal court and demanded special grand-jury action.

From the young woman's confession, corroborated by that of Wamquist and Avanzo, a "bomb syndicate" has been operating in Chicago many months, offering to bomb any residence or place of business at prices ranging from $500 to $1,000.

Homes of policemen and witnesses in criminal trials have been dynamited and barber shops and stores have been bombed in the past few months. Forty of these outrages can be traced to this "bomb syndicate," police believe.

The so-called syndicate was composed of dozens of persons, it is believed, but Wamquist was one of the leaders and often the one who placed the explosives. The girl admitted she had laid many of them herself, fleeing with Wamquist, who waited nearby.

Richwood, O., Nov. 27.—Mrs. Lena Schrock Rice, held in Chicago in connection with the bombing of a hardware store, went to Chicago in July to take a job in a restaurant, Mrs. H. C. Schrock, Mrs. Rice's mother, said today.

Mrs. Schrock said her daughter is estranged from her husband, Archie Rice, who is now in Benton Harbor, Mich. They have two children, Leon, 6, and Fred, 3, both of whom are with Mrs. Schrock who lives on a farm near here.

The Schrocks moved to this vicinity from Indiana.

GOVERNOR FERGUSON RETURNS TO CAPITAL TO FACE OPPONENTS

Publisher Ejected From Grid Game For His Rooting

Austin, Tex., Nov. 27.—The end of what is considered the most hectic week thus far in governor Miriam Ferguson's administration drew near a close today.

The governor was due back in the capital to face demands of sixty members of the legislature for a special session of the assembly to investigate alleged irregularities in administration of state affairs.

The Travis County Grand Jury in session since October 5, was expected to report with sensational data.

There has been no indication that Speaker Lee Satterwhite will budge from his determination to call a special session if Governor Ferguson refuses to do so before December 10, the date set in the legislators' petition.

The woman governor has made no move to replace the two vacancies in her highway commission occasioned by the resignation of Frank V. Latham, chairman, and Joe Burkette, member who resigned under fire.

College Station, Tex., Nov. 27.—Amos Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Record-Telegram, was put off the football field, where the Texas Aggies and Texas University played yesterday for shouting "Hurrah for A. & M. and Dan Moody."

Carter was said to have walked back of the box occupied by Gov. Miriam Ferguson and her official party to do his "rooting."

President T. O. Walton, of A. & M. College, warned Carter to desist, threatening to call officers. Carter disregarded the college president and was escorted from the field by special officers.

MOTORIST SHOT

Marble Head, O., Nov. 27.—An inquest was begun here today into the death of Frank Robel, a motorist who was shot and seriously wounded by Leslie T. Worner, another motorist. The shooting followed an altercation in which Worner attempted to force Robel's car from the road, according to police.

BROKEN FIRE PLUG CAUSES GEYSER AT CHURCH AND KING INTERSECTION

The intersection at West Church and King Streets was converted into a miniature lake and a geyser of water rose to a height of thirty feet, when a motorist by the name of Stewart, of north of Xenia, became blinded by the rain and drove his automobile over a fire plug at the intersection Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

The plug and valve were torn off and the water, fed by a six inch water main, covered both streets with water for half an hour. It took that long for officials of the city water department

BRITAIN MOURNS AT FINAL SERVICES FOR QUEEN ALEXANDRA

Thousands Line Way Of Funeral March To Westminster

London, Nov. 27.—Royalty, nobility and commoners joined today in a vast funeral tribute to Queen Mother Alexandra, braving wind and snow to watch in reverent silence the pomp that marked an empire's sorrow.

The funeral procession from St. James Palace, where the body of the Queen mother had lain last night, passed through the Mall and down Whitehall in streets lined with guards.

Only one thousand men from specially selected detachments of the army, navy and air forces, with arms reversed and their matted bands sounding dirges led the procession, contrasting with the 14,000 who would have marched had the funeral been for the king or queen.

The casket had been guarded through the night in the chapel royal at St. James Palace by picturesque yeoman of the guard and members of the honorable corps of gentlemen-at-arms. This morning, it was placed upon a gun carriage drawn by six splendid horses, for its march to the Abbey through lanes of sorrowing Britons.

Behind the basket marked royalty. King George—the "Georgie" of his mother, followed reverently at the head of the royal men-folk, afoot, trudging through the winter cold and the wet underfoot. Then came other Kings—Albert of Belgium; Christian X, of Denmark; Haakon VII, of Norway; followed by the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, Prince Henry, the Crown Prince of Roumania, Sweden and Norway, Prince Waldemar of Denmark, Prince Axel of Denmark, and Prince Charles of Belgium.

The other male relatives, court officials and dignitaries followed.

At Westminster the casket was received by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dean of Westminster and Assistant Clergy who conveyed it to the foot of the chancel steps.

Queen Mary of England and the Queens of Norway, Spain and Belgium arrived in carriages.

Within the ancient Abbey, services started at 11:30. The strains of Queen Alexandra's favorite Psalm, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" wafted down from the choir as benediction, as the body was borne to the nave.

The usual Anglican ritual will be except the committal which will be said tomorrow in the interment services at Windsor, where Queen Alexandra will be buried in company of Kings, sleeping beside the body of her husband, King Edward, Eulogy was omitted.

The benediction followed the hymns and then Chopin's March Funebre marked the departure of the Abbey mourners which included the entire cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps and parliament.

The casket remained. And from one o'clock until tonight the humber of the land passed Alexandra's bier rendering to her "the last sad tribute that man can give to man."

After the Abbey doors have closed, the body will be taken unostentatiously during the night to the train which shall bear it to Windsor for tomorrow's commitment to the vaults of the kings.

HOPE JURY WILL BE SELECTED SOON

Von Tirpitz In Favor Of Abolition Of Submarine Warfare Reporter Is Told

Berlin, Nov. 27.—The venerable Admiral Von Tirpitz, who advocated submarine war against Germany's enemies and developed the U boat to its highest war efficiency, told the United Press today in an exclusive interview that he favors abolition of the submarine as a war weapon.

Asked for his opinion of this question, in the light of England's renewed effort to have the "wasps of the sea" banished by international agreement, the Admiral declared this would be "desirable," though he attached a condition to his advocacy.

"The sanctity of private property on the seven seas," he said, "conforms to an ancient principle of law. Therefore the abolition of submarines is extremely desirable, providing that subsequent abolition of the blockade follows as a logical consequence."

Admiral Von Tirpitz told the United Press earlier in the year apropos a discussion then underway, suggesting that President Coolidge take the lead in another disarmament conference, that he would welcome such intervention. But then, as now, he qualified his statements, (hitherto unpublished) saying:

"The idea of general disarmament is indeed the pre-supposition upon which Germany at the end of the war laid down her arms and concluded the armistice.

"Since this idea was then only applied against Germany through the Versailles peace treaty, while the other states, especially Germany's neighbors in Europe, continued to arm, Germany can only welcome the fact that the threads, broken since that time are again gathered up."

Von Tirpitz is prominent in the councils of the Nationalist Party which has been fighting the Locarno safety pacts on the ground they perpetuate and confirm the Versailles treaty, which they say constantly lays Germany in chains.

FIVE BANDITS HOLD UP JEWELRY STORE; GET $25,000 IN GEMS

Clerks and Customers Bound and Gagged By the Looters

Toledo, O., Nov. 27.—Five bandits, said to be members of the "Hooknose Flying Mob" gang held up the S. B. Stein jewelry store here today and escaped with gems valued at $25,000.

Stein, two employees and two customers, one a woman, were in the store when two of the bandits entered. They were ordered into a back-room where with cool precision, the bandits bound and gagged them, summoned their companions and proceeded to loot the store.

Stein resisted one of the bandits and was felled by a blow on the head.

Miss Nita Hoyt, 20, one of the customers, was bound hand and foot and tossed into a pile with the others.

As the bandits entered, one yelled "stick up yer dukes." Every one except Stein complied.

The loot included valuable unset diamonds.

The "Hooknose" gang is known as a highly organized group of bandits and members of the gang were recognized by Stein, he told police.

The bandits scooped up only unset jewels which Stein had purchased for the Christmas trade. Merchandise in cases and on the counters was not molested.

Descriptions of the bandits were given to police by the five victims.

A man known as "Hooknose" and said to be head of the Hooknose gang, led the raid, Stein told police.

FOOTBALL EDITION BRINGS HUGE CROWD TO HOLIDAY FRACAS

School Authorities Pleased With Support of Merchants

Central High School's football victory over Washington C. H., undefeated champions of the South Central High School League. Thanksgiving afternoon is in part attributed by school authorities to vocal support and backing given the team by the large crowd that witnessed the contest.

Xenians gave the team poor support earlier in the season but the great crowd attending Thursday's contest gave Central athletes the needed confidence to want to win, to play their heads off against an eleven which had proved itself superior in past games and on its record.

School officials attribute the large crowd to advertising in the football edition published Tuesday by The Evening Gazette and Morning Republican. Xenia merchants joined whole-heartedly with the papers and the support afforded the team Thursday exceeded the fondest expectations of school authorities.

Even the most optimistic hardly conceded Central an outside chance to win from Washington. Even Coach Victor Kolb privately predicted defeat before the game. "The boys, however, will never stop fighting," declared Coach Kolb. And that was the spirit which won for Central.

Heiress Who Eloped With Bellboy Defeats Attempt to Declare Her Insane

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 27.—True love triumphed again when Isabel Rich, 21, daughter of a wealthy Grand Island, Neb., physician, was finally reunited with Harold Hamlin, 22, her bellboy husband.

Rising from her sick bed to elope with her bellboy lover in the wee small hours, Isabel fled with her hotel sheik to Omaha and was married before her father, Dr. Max L. Rich, knew she was gone.

But scarcely had the girl and Hamlin settled in their Omaha love nest, when she was arrested on a warrant sworn out by her sister, Margaret Rich, Grand Island society girl, charging Isabel was insane. The bride of 24 hours was pulled from her husband and placed in a psychopathic ward of an Omaha hospital.

But the next day Dr. G. Alexander Young, representing the insanity commission of Douglas County, pronounced her not only sane but a girl with an extraordinary intellect and ordered her return to her bellboy husband.

"It was all a scheme to keep us apart while her father tried to annul the marriage," Hamlin declared, "but he couldn't; we're both of age."

Then came a laughable climax to the affair. A letter came to the young couple's attorney, Frank Post, revealing that 40 years ago the father who objected to the "degrading" marriage of his daughter to a bellboy, had himself been a bellboy, and at the same hotel, the Paxton of Omaha, at which Hamlin now works.

POLICEMAN AND CAB DRIVER VICTIMS IN SEARCH FOR DURKIN

Shooting Sheikh May Be Blamed For Latest Killings.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Police Sergeant James Carroll and Ben Custer, a taxicab driver, were killed and another policeman and civilian were severely wounded here today by four men, who police think, were bent on robbery.

First reports were that the leader of the band was Martin Durkin, the "shooting sheik," who has killed a federal official and a policeman in two sensational shooting escapades.

Captain Benjamin Enright, after an investigation, declared the affair an attempted hold-up.

Carroll and Patrolman James Henry were on guard in a saloon on South Halstead Street, on a tip that Durkin was in the neighborhood. Near 4 a. m. there was a rap on the door. It was opened and four men rushed in and started shooting. Carroll and Custer fell dead, and Henry and Gus Soeldner, dropped, severely wounded. The four men then ran out and disappeared.

PROPER ADDRESSING OF MAIL WOULD SAVE MAIL CLERKS WORRY

Dead letter office at Washington, D. C., is maintained at an expense of nearly a million dollars a year, according to Postmaster C. S. Frazer. Practically all of this expense could be avoided by the correct addressing of letters, he explains.

If all letters would bear in the upper left hand corner the return address of the sender, there would be little material for the dead letter office, according to Postmaster Frazer. "You should know your own address, even if not sure of the other fellow's," he says.

"Letters and packages should have the name of the city, state and also the street number written plainly. Xenia, Lima, Elyria and Venice, O., all post-offices in this state, are often so written that the clerks handling this mail can hardly determine which office is intended," according to the postmaster.

"Out of Xenia office on one rural route, there are seven families by the name of Coy. On another rural route there are five families by the name of Harner. The full name of the addressee will enable carriers to make better delivery as families nearly always have several of the same given name. Instead of J. B. Smith, it would be much better to write John B. Smith, as this much information will often determine just who the piece of mail is for.

"The name of the state should be written plainly as the abbreviations for some of the states can be written in such a manner that it is not possible to determine which state is intended. 'Cal.' and 'Cal.' are often so much alike that it is better to write 'Calif.' if California is intended.

"There are thirty-eight postoffices in the United States by the name of Franklin, twenty-eight Washingtons, twenty-three Springfields, twenty-one Daytons, twenty-one by the name of Columbus, outside of Ohio.

"Many of the states have offices of the same name as are found in our county," Postmaster Frazer said. "Alphaville, thirteen outside of Ohio; Bowersville, two outside of Ohio; Cedarville, eleven outside of Ohio; Clifton, nine outside of Ohio; Jamestown, twenty outside of Ohio; Spring Valley, eight outside of Ohio; and two Xenias outside of the state.

"Many valuable letters containing money, checks and important information go to the dead letter office every year because of no return address. This causes delay and in some cases loss where a little care in proper attention before mailing would make it easy to locate the sender.

"Efficient mail clerks must handle letters at the rate of thirty-two per minute or good service cannot be rendered. Remember that at least five or six different clerks will handle your letter before it reaches its destination," said Postmaster Frazer.

The Ford was damaged to the extent of bent axle and fenders. The Dayton motorist promised to pay the damage but to be on the safe side, the officers confiscated his automobile to insure payment. The damage will amount to $40.

LOCARNO AND RUSSIA.

MOSCOW'S reaction to the Locarno security pacts was to describe them as a European bloc against Russia. They are a bloc, but not in the sense Russia sees them. The nations of Europe will not send their armies against Soviet Russia nor conduct economic warfare against the Russians.

The Locarno bloc is moral. It has deprived Moscow of what hopes it had of alliance with Germany against the other European powers. Germany won't fight with the Russian government and alone, Moscow has consistently shown an unwillingness to challenge Europe.

Through Locarno also Soviet Russia is put to a test before the world. In giving Europe greater economic stability it affords a more accurate measure for economic conditions in Russia. Then also it permits a clearer comparison between the new democracy of Europe and the minority dictatorship in Moscow as measured in what each has accomplished for the well-being of their respective people.

If Russia is to appear at all favorable in this competition with the rest of Europe it will be because the Moscow government is no longer communistic. In its eighth year the soviet government is still strongly entrenched, but one reason for that is that it has departed from "war communism." Lenin sanctioned the restoration of internal private trade. Money has been restored. Taxes are again being levied, although collected with difficulty.

SEEKING AFTER FACTS.

IT IS a common trait to resent a fact when it conflicts with a preconceived notion. We cherish old ideas as we keep old clothes that ought to be thrown away, and we do not thank the one who takes them from us. Yet in time we come to cherish what we once resisted and make believe that it was our own from the beginning.

In politics or religion it is common to find belief a matter of inheritance rather than conviction. We receive our affiliation with a church or a party as a family legacy. If we find among our juniors a tendency to go off at a tangent and do their own thinking, that challenges the foundations received and conserved, we are likely to denounce it as a symptom of a restless and a dangerous age.

But it is healthy to ask questions and it is a necessary preliminary to real progress. The arch-foe to the social order is the person or the institution that is unquestionable. In every intellectual matter the absolute dictatorship is impossible if the truth is to be ascertained.

That facts may take effect the mind must be prepared, as land is plowed and harrowed for the sowing of the seed. The capacity of the mind to repel truth often seems to exceed its capacity for receiving instruction, as many an exasperated teacher of "stupid" children is aware. But a thing is not true merely because some one says it. The teacher may be wrong. And the most inspiring teacher, most willingly followed, is not one who insists that all he says is the word of final authority. He leads his pupils in quest of truth, whatever turn the way may take, whatever the journey's end.

In the modern world we need more science, less sentimental rhapsodizing that deals in large, poetic generalities instead of accurate and definite information. It will not do to assume that the reader or hearer represents a low average of intelligence; he may know uncomfortably more of the subject in hand than the one who essays to inform him.

A NEW DOLLAR.

WHETHER or not the public likes it, government efficiency experts are determined to give it a new form of money. In this matter the government isn't taking a purely arbitrary stand but is acting in the interest of economy.

There can not be too much money in any family, if it is good money, and the great American family is demanding more and more. The present circulation of $4,827,005,344 has been exceeded only once—on November 1, 1920, when it was $5,628,427,732. Not only is the public using more money but it is wearing it out faster.

One-dollar bills and "five-spots" are in greatest demand. The last six months have seen the circulation of dollar notes increase 340,000,000. Bills of these denominations are also the shortest lived and are responsible for the present attempts at currency reform. Government experts have found that because the life of greenbacks and five-spots is but a few months, the government is losing money on them.

Several years ago the treasury department tried to save money by reducing the size of paper currency. There was a general protest, especially from banks and business houses, and the plan was abandoned. Within recent months there was an attempt to make the $2 bill popular as an economy measure. It proved to be a fiasco, probably because of the unreasonable and inexplicable superstition which attaches to the "deuce spot."

The efficiency experts in the treasury department are persistent folks. Undaunted by past failures, they now offer another economy scheme. A small and light-weight metal dollar has been evolved to take the place of the greenback. It is of silver and gold, a center of the yellow metal with silver rim, of a size slightly larger than a quarter. Qualities which recommend it to the public are its convenient size and weight. An attribute which may limit its circulation is its similarity in size and weight to other coins. It will be pointed out that the two-dollar bill owed its ostracism to the fact that people feared they would tender them in mistake for dollar notes.

QUICK DESSERTS
Nature endowed most human beings with a "sweet tooth," and so a meal without a sweet at the end of it lacks something which one craves. Yet the busy woman who does her own housework, often finds it hard to spare the time to make pie or pudding. It is well, whenever possible, to make the dinner dessert in the morning and have it off one's mind for the rest of the day. And generally it is found that from five to fifteen minutes only can be devoted to this dessert-making. The following dishes take only ten minutes to prepare:

Golden Cream Custard: Dissolve six tablespoons of granulated sugar in the juice of two large oranges; add the grated rind of one orange, two well-beaten egg-yolks, and one cup of sweet, rich top-milk or sweet, thin cream. Place the mixture over boiling water and cook till it "coats a spoon" stirring constantly. Now remove from range at once and turn into individual dessert dishes. Chill and serve.

Quick Rice Pudding: This is a good dessert to make when you happen to have three-fourths of a cup of cooked rice on hand: Heat the rice in the top of your double boiler with one cup of cold sweet milk, then stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs. Dissolve four tablespoons of granulated sugar in the juice of one large lemon, and add this to the cooking pudding. When well mixed, turn all into a buttered pudding dish and fold in the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs. Sprinkle two tablespoons of powdered sugar over the top, dot over with two tablespoons of butter, and slip the dish into a moderate oven for just a moment to brown. Serve cold.

Banana-Orange Dessert: Peel three large seedless navel oranges and also remove white membrane from each section. Peel two bananas and cut in slices. Cut one-half box of stoned dates into small pieces. Now combine these, three fruits with one-half cup of broken walnut meats and squeeze the juice of one-half orange over all.

Coffee Pudding: Soak one cupful stale cake crumbs (or cookie crumbs) in one pint of sweet, cold milk mixed with one pint of cold made coffee for one hour. Then stir in one-half cup of light brown sugar and one-half teaspoon of vanilla extract. Add two eggs slightly beaten, and turn the mixture into a buttered baking dish. Set this dish in a shallow pan which contains a little hot water and slip all—both pan and dish—into a moderate oven to bake till the pudding is firm in the middle—about 35 minutes, but it is safest to test it with a knife (if he blade comes out clean, the pudding is cooked.) Serve cold.

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

THE POOR FISH

Said the fish to the man
On the rivulet's brink,
As he reached for a bottle
And started to drink:
"I am just a poor fish
And when hungry I eat,
I am lured to my death
By what seems to be meat!"

"It is true I'm a fool,
And I don't stop to look
When a minnow I see
If it's tied to a hook.
I take a long chance
For the food I require,
But not every minnow
Is tied to a wire."

"You are smarter than I,
But I'll venture to say
You play with your life
In the very same way.
If the label reads 'whiskey'
You don't stop to think,
It may be rank poison,
But you'll take a drink."

"You laugh at a fish
That is caught on a hook,
Though a bass that is hungry
Has no time to look,
But the man who will drink
All that's labelled today
As whiskey, is truly
A poor fish. I'll save!"

Today's Talks

HOW

Learn how! This is the beginning of all success and happiness.

The man who knows adds to his accumulation of knowledge every hour and is always growing. He sits at the feet of no one—he listens at the feet of all.

No matter how trivial the thing may be, if you know how to handle it, you have a basis for larger achievement.

The other day I stopped and watched a large crew building a bridge. The way they had planned it all out seemed wonderful to me. Each process from the driving of piles and the erection of the concrete and steel supports, to the finished, graceful lines of the long sections of the bridge, seemed simple enough though I knew that every inch of it had been carefully worked out and drawn by a man who knew.

A life can be built just like a bridge. But you must first know how to live. How to face the hard knocks and the discouragements and the defeats. Even the bridge builder runs up against difficulties that he doesn't expect. But his knowledge always shows him a way out.

Keep thinking, observing—pondering things over. Line up your ideas as though they were choice pupils of yours. Ask them questions.

Learn how!

Consider nothing trivial in which knowledge is encased.

He who does big things carries with him a great reserve. He is always looking ahead. He sees, with his fine imagination, the completed thing, even before it has been started. This is a way that the know-how men have.

What a part this little word "how" plays in human affairs! If you know how you are independent. You will go ahead on your own account and ask odds of no man.

Learn how!

Watch Your Frail, Puny Child Grow Strong—Take On Weight

In just a few days—quicker than you ever dreamt of—these wonderful flesh-making tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets will start to help any weak, thin, undernourished little one.

After sickness and where rickets are suspected they are especially valuable. No need to give them any more nasty Cod Liver Oil—these tablets are made to take the place of that food but without the stomach up-jetting medicine and they surely do it. They do put on flesh.

Ask Sayre and Hemphill or any druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—as easy to take as candy and not at all expensive—60 tablets, 60 cents.

Be sure and get McCoy's, the original and genuine and give the child a chance for 30 days. If you aren't delighted with results you get your money back—Adv.

END BUNION PAIN FOREVER

No Need to Suffer Another Day Those Agonizing Torturing Pains.

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflamed, swollen toe joints and get them down to normal and that is to apply Moore's Emerald Oil night and morning and people who suffer from such enlargements would be wise to reduce them before they reach a more or less chronic stage.

Ask Sayre and Hemphill or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and further more if this wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.—Adv.

HOME PUPILS EAT TURKEY THURSDAY AND ENJOY HOLIDAY

After devouring 3,300 pounds of turkey and all the trimmings Thanksgiving Day, pupils of the O. S. and S. O. Home were asked by Mrs. T. E. Andrews, chief matron, if they suffered any ill effects and replied "Not yet."

Thanksgiving Day menu consisted of roast turkey, oyster dressing, mashed potatoes, celery and olives. The meal was topped off with mince pie but the boys and girls called a truce at this stage and were unable to finish dessert.

Several boys of the institution spent the afternoon hunting rabbits through the Home farm and managed to kill one of the animals. Other pupils, with the Home band, attended the Xenia High-Washington game at Cox Memorial Athletic field.

Under the direction of Miss Hazel Frost, dramatic instructor at the Home, a delightful program was staged in the chapel Thursday evening.

The program opened with an Indian scene. Alice Philby recited Hiawatha's Love Story, while other pupils enacted the story. Pupils also gave an Indian dance and a Pilgrim scene was prettily presented. The program closed with a patriotic skit, in pantomime, while Thelma Kneisler recited the story. Music was furnished by the girl's orchestra.

MRS. SMITH STILL REMAINS IN JAIL

Still unable to furnish $500 bond, Mrs. Helen Louise G. Smith alias Lesprance, accused in an unknown affidavit filed in Washington, D. C. with entering the United States from Canada without proper papers, spent her sixteenth straight day in the County Jail Thanksgiving Day.

Although it was a festive occasion for the other prisoners in the jail, Thanksgiving Day found Mrs. Smith with nothing to be thankful for. It is her belief she is being imposed upon by a man who she charges forced her into an unwilling marriage, although she is already married. This is his woman, she believes.

Arraigned by T. Marshall, her counsel, declared Thursday no day has been definitely set for her preliminary hearing in Xenia. The hearing will probably take place before a same inspector early in December, he said.

Mrs. Smith was arrested on the affidavit by E. L. Conant, Cincinnati, immigration inspector.

LUMBERTON

ALL THERE IS IN RADIO!

FATHERS and mothers and sons and daughters sit at home with one hand on the Day-Fan Radio single dial control, and skip from state to state, picking from the broadcasting programs the full beauty of the selections they like best.

If a station is numbered 400 in the newspaper, it's numbered 400 on the Day-Fan 5 dial! Could anything be easier to use?

And how they do come in! What beauty there is in the deep boom of the cello, in the high lark-like notes of the coloratura soprano! "That piano might be in the next room" we overheard a Day-Fan listener say.

Well, we don't have to tell people what the Day-Fan will do. We just ask them to come in and let the set do its own talking. If you want a radio at moderate price, which will bring in all that radio has to offer from all over the United States—if you want radio service with the exactness of a dial telephone—come in and hear a Day-Fan tonight.

XMAS SHOPPING IS SPURRED BY FUNDS FROM SAVINGS CLUBS

The rapid growth of the "early Christmas shopping" movement in Ohio is indicated by changes which have been made by banks and other financial institutions in the management of their Christmas savings funds.

When this plan was first inaugurated and became popular in Ohio a few years ago, it was the universal custom to make the annual distribution of this money on December 15 or even later.

Secretary S. A. Roach, of the Ohio Bankers' Association has advised Xenia banks that a recent survey shows that in practically all cities the distribution this year will start about December 1 and will be completed prior to December 10. There are hundreds of these Christmas clubs now operating in Ohio.

"Bankers have been quick to respond to the demand of the depositors in these clubs for an earlier distribution each year," Mr. Roach commented. "The depositors found that where distribution was delayed until December 15 or later, they were losing the best of the Christmas shopping opportunities. Their money was not available until the merchandise stocks in their city had been somewhat depleted, and they were forced to compete with the tremendous crowds which thronged the stores during the latter part of the Christmas shopping season."

Bankers state that a chief factor in bringing about earlier distribution of these funds was the fact that in practically all cities retail merchants have recognized the tendency toward earlier shopping and this season have placed their Christmas holiday stocks on sale much earlier than in former years. In Xenia, for example, merchants this year are displaying their fall holiday lines earlier than ever before.

A local banker who has watched the development of Christmas savings funds in this city said that in his opinion the growth of this idea will be a considerable factor in stimulating the early Christmas shopping which, according to every advance indication, will be so marked in Xenia this year. Local depositors in these funds, aware of the fact that many Christmas gift bargains were slipping away from them, are preparing to make their withdrawals at the earliest possible date. They thus will be enabled to get their gift-buying programs out of the way ahead of the usual last-minute rush.

"Bobbed Hair" A DAZZLING MYSTERY STORY BY TWENTY FAMOUS AUTHORS

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore has just died off the deck of the yacht, joining Mr. Tish in the waters of Long Island Sound. There had been a terrible fight aboard, following talk of bootleggers and revenue officers. Aunt Celimena, accompanied by Bing Carrington, Saltonstall Adams and Brewster, the lawyer, is just leaving her Connecticut home—though it's after midnight—to search for Connie. The girl was to have announced her engagement tonight, but—disappeared.

"I thought of the very thing," he announced triumphantly. "Harry Harvey's got a motor boat that will take us to Bayville in no time. Harry's in Saratoga, but his engineer knows me, and he lives in the boathouse down by the inlet. You're not to worry, Miss Moore," he repeated soothingly. The role of protecting and advising Aunt Celimena was so novel that Bing couldn't resist playing with it from time to time. He had always had an uneasy conviction that the indomitable old lady preferred Salt to himself as a future nephew-in-law, which naturally did nothing to detract from his enjoyment of the present situation.

A winding country lane led from the Boston Post Road to the particular little inlet from the Sound they were headed for, and at the end of this they found Harry Harvey's boathouse readily enough, but no engineer. The motorboat, a fairly large one, was locked into a slip over which the boathouse straddled.

The unforeseen absence of the engineer was disconcerting, but Bing was in a mood tonight to ride roughshod over obstacles, ethical or physical as the case might be, and he declared boldly that since there was no one to give permission, they must do without.

Mr. Brewster was inclined to demur at the forcible removal of another man's property, but his protests were swept aside without formality, and he found himself, somewhat to his own astonishment, following the resourceful Mr. Carrington, gingerly, through a broken window into the dark interior of the boathouse.

Salt and Aunt Celimena waited outside until the doors of the boathouse swung open, after which Bing once more disappeared into the darkness within, to loose the motor boat from its moorings.

The storm had blown over, but it was not until they were within sight of the Long Island shore that the moon broke through the clouds, conveniently in readiness to light their passage into Bayville.

Mr. Brewster pointed it out to Miss Celimena as complacently as though he, personally, were responsible for its reappearance.

"A good omen, my dear Miss Moore," he suggested, rubbing his thin hands ingratiatingly.

Miss Celimena ignored him. "What's that?" she demanded of no one in particular, lifting a hand for silence. Salt, who was near her, bent forward in a listening attitude.

The sound was repeated, and this time resolved itself into muffled shouting and a few straggling shots at what appeared to be no great distance from them; though, since the moon once more chose to retire behind the heavy wind clouds racing across the sky, it was impossible to see anything.

"Sounds as if rum runners were out tonight," Bing grunted. "Guess they're in a clash with some patrol boat."

Mr. Brewster was evidently of the slightest need of your undertaking this wild-goose chase," he pleaded. "Let us go back. I beg of you, and these young men can—"

"Fish!" said Aunt Celimena with a brevity and decision that would have been cruder in anyone less naturally majestic. Unfortunately the full effect of the retort was somewhat marred by her having risen to her feet to peer into the darkness ahead, as a particularly playful wave of the Filomena's bow. Aunt Celimena sat down a little hurriedly for either dignity or comfort, and panted, glaring about her.

Bing shut off the engine, and they floated for a time, listening for a repetition of the sound of firing, which did not come. Then the moon made one of its periodic reappearances and showed them a motorboat only a few hundred yards away. She had no lights, and the irregular put-put-put of her exhaust spoke of trouble. She was distinctly down by the bow, and even in the uncertainty of moonlight and shadow it took no expert to see that she had been badly stove in.

Evidently someone on board her caught sight of the Harvey boat at the same moment, for a vigorous hail came across the water, requesting the Filomena to stand by.

"I don't altogether like the look of this," Bing confided to Salt Adams under his breath, his face troubled. "But she's sinking, that's sure. We'll have to take 'em on board, whoever they are."

The other craft was heading directly for them now, laboring heavily, and Bing, leaving Salt to start their engine, went forward again to the wheel.

What happened next was as perplexing as it was unexpected. The navigator on the approaching boat suddenly put his helm hard over, so that the battered newcomer lay full in the path of the Filomena.

Bing, with no time to consider, instinctively selected the side that seemed to offer the better chance of passing, and swung his own wheel. For a moment it looked as though he would get by, but hope was short-lived. The nose of the Filomena grazed, jarringly, along the other craft's side, and Bing found himself sprawling in the bilge.

Before he could disentangle himself from Aunt Celimena, who had clutched him with determination at the moment of impact, a man climbed agilely over the Filomena's rail and swung himself down on the deck. "He was a big man in a wet and torn jersey, and as Bing struggled to his feet he had a glimpse over one shoulder of a section of pipe, wielded by one of the brawny arms the jersey covered, descending deliberately in the direction of his own unprotected head. He also saw, to his amazement, that five or six bulky figures had followed the first over the side, and appeared to be hitting senselessly and indiscriminately at anything they saw moving.

Then the moonlight was obscured abruptly for Bing Carrington in a shower of red and golden stars, and, his feet slipping from under him, he shot head first over the Filomena's low rail.

The pipe welder had struck him a glancing blow, stunning him momentarily, but the plunge into the water revived him sufficiently to realize the advantages of the depths over the surface just then.

By the time bursting lungs had forced him to come up, he was fifty feet or more from the two boats and well in the shadow. A log was bobbing along in the path of the moonlight. Somebody on one of the boats caught sight of it, and immediately a revolver sang out several times, and two bullets splattered the water close to the log. The firer, however, discovering his mistake, desisted, and Bing, with cautious intervals of swimming under water, made his way to the near-by shore.

Behind him on the deck he had left so precipitately, pandemonium reigned for the space of a few long-drawn-out minutes, but at the end of that time the boarders, owing to the surprise of the attack and superior numbers, had things their own way, and proceeded to lay the two boats side by side.
